With humanity at a critical juncture, Admiral P. Kikareas, President and CEO of the World Peace Foundation, a division of Hellenic Aspis & Associates, Inc., offers the Code of "The Human Brotherhood" as a means for achieving peace and security.

Orlando, FL (PRWeb) January 4, 2007 -- Admiral Panagiotis Kikareas (ret.) PhD, a well-known peace advocate and President and CEO of the World Peace Foundation (www.hellasp.com), today called on the leaders and citizens of the world to embrace the Code of "The Human Brotherhood," a move which he said can help ensure peace and prosperity.

According to Kikareas, "The Human Brotherhood" includes all people on Earth - each of whom has a mission. Kikareas, who has worked nearly his entire life for peace, urges everyone -- regardless of tradition of faith -- to first have great respect for themselves.

Next, individuals must think deeply about what they are doing to fulfill their responsibilities to the brotherhood, as the actions of each effects the unity of the whole.

Socrates, the ancient Greek philosopher and the father of moral philosophy once said, "Each one should respect first of all and above all himself /herself, over of any teachings , and try to exercise virtue."

According to Kikareas, if each person took Socrates' advice to heart, then the problems of the world will be replaced by a new order of peace, understanding, development and happiness.

"I wish 2007 to be the year that will bring this change to humanity so that all human beings may become brothers and sisters," Kikareas said. "This is the Code of 'The Human Brotherhood' that will automatically bring peace and security to Earth."
